Snow cover conditions and avalanche danger: From the afternoon increase in cloudiness, significant thermal decrease with the possibility of slight snowfalls above 1200 m. Avalanche danger is 1 (low) throughout the mountain territory. During hot hours, in the early afternoon on the very steep slopes of the still snow-covered sunny slopes and small natural avalanches of wet snow are still possible on the North ones at low-to-medium altitudes. At the highest altitudes of the Northern sides and on the extreme slopes the possibility remains of causing small triggering generally with high additional load.

Forecast for Tuesday 26 March 2019, reliability: 90%

Snow cover generally stable and with good firmness. Icy sections are present.

Weather by OSMER - ARPA FVG:

Variable skies in the morning, little cloudy during the day with strong winds from NE at altitude.

Snow cover conditions and avalanche danger: Little cloudy skies with thermal zero at 1200 m and strong winds from NE at altitude. The expected significant decrease in temperature will favor the snow cover firmness. On the Northern sides to maximum altitudes and on extreme slopes, on isolated areas, there is still the possibility of causing small surface triggering generally with high additional load. Attention must be paid to icy sections that can cause disastrous falls. Expected avalanche danger is 1 low on the whole mountain territory.
